

Lazy River Sculpture

Commons Park, located at the intersection of Martinazzi, Nyberg and Boones Ferry Rd, features a sculpture titled "Lazy River" by artist Joseph Rastovich. The sculpture was installed in August, 2014 to commemorate Tualatin's Centennial. Standing 20 foot above ground, the steel sculpture's shape represents the Tualatin River and a mastodon tusk. The sculpture is covered with 32 embossed icons depicting Tualatin's cultural and natural history. The icons depict pioneers, crawfish, local fauna, the ice age floods, the Atfalati people, and biking and the river, among others. The sculpture was a generous gift to the community from the Tualatin Arts Advisory Committee to strengthen community image and create a sense of place.